Baptist Meet Starts Sunday

Dr. Angel Martinez, one of Southern Baptists' foremost and successful evangelists, begins a week-long revival at First Baptist Church in Hope Sunday. His opening sermon at 10:40 a.m. will be broadcast over Radio Station KXAR.

He is a graduate of Baylor University and Southern Baptist Seminary. Pete Nunez, internationally known gospel singer, will lead the 42-member Baptist choir lead the 42-member Baptist choir. The public is invited.

Picket Line Hits Store at Texarkana

TEXARKANA, Tex. (AP) — A picket line was thrown up Thursday at two Safeway grocery stores in Texarkana after some members of the Retail Clerks Union walked off their jobs.

Fred Marlow of Dallas, district manager for Safeway, said the stores would be open for business as usual today.

He said negotiations were held Thursday between company and union spokesmen and a federal mediator. Marlow declined to say what the union members walked off the job for.

"At present, we are negotiating a new contract with the Retail Clerks Union," he said.

He added that Safeway and the union settled a dispute with clerks in the Dallas-Fort Worth area two weeks ago.

Minnesota Sales Tax on Some Items

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota has become the 44th state to adopt a sales tax after its Conservative-dominated legislature overturned the veto of Republican Gov. Harold LeVander.

The only states now without sales taxes are Alaska, Delaware, Montana, New Hampshire, Oregon and Vermont. Nebraska's new 2 1/2 per cent tax took effect Thursday.

Minnesota's controversial 3 per cent selective sales tax will take effect Aug. 1. It will apply to most retail purchases except groceries, clothing, drugs, gasoline and services. Liquor and beer will be taxed.

Humphrey, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara told congressional leaders Thursday the United States is trying for a diplomatic settlement ahead of a test of force.

Humphrey told newsmen "I have not heard of any such consideration" when asked about reports the United States and other maritime powers are planning to use a naval force in the gulf.

Rusk said, "I don't want to get into any question of unilateral action."

They reportedly showed the congressmen one proposed declaration on freedom of shipping which said that signers would assert right of passage through the gulf on behalf of all shipping serving under their flags.

This version did not mention specifically the right of Israeli-flag ships to navigate the gulf, however. One top official said Israel would be unlikely to accept a declaration which did not assert its right to ship through the gulf.

Humphrey downplayed the additions of aarships to the Soviet Mediterranean force.

An important element in the U.S. hope that forcible action will prove unnecessary is the Soviet attitude.

U.S. officials say as a result of exchanges with Soviet authorities they believe the Soviet government is interested in avoiding war in the Middle East although it is supporting Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser's general position against Israel.

The assumption here is that the Soviets have advised some restraint in Nasser's actions. Officials note the Soviets in supporting the Arab position in public statements and at the United Nations have avoided all-out endorsement of Nasser's declared blockade of the Gulf of Aqaba against Israeli shipping.

This has encouraged speculation among officials that at some point the Soviets might be willing to join in developing a compromise solution for the blockade problem.

State Police Officials to Retire

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Col. Herman Lindsey, 56, the Arkansas State Police Director who cracked down on Hot Springs gambling this year under orders from Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller, announced Thursday that he would retire July 1 in order to accept a "less arduous job."

Lindsey's retirement, which had been rumored for about two weeks, headed a list of four that were announced. The others were by Maj. Mack Thompson, 44, Lindsey's administrative assistant; Maj. J. Earl Scroggin, 64, the department's personnel officer, and Lt. Floyd Short, former head of the First District Highway Patrol.

All are effective July 1, except Short's which became effective Thursday.

Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller said Lindsey had appraised him of the situation a couple of weeks ago, but that he hadn't had time to think of a replacement.

"I hope he will wait until we work out our next move," Rockefeller said. "I hope he will accommodate me."

Lindsey said he would stay on beyond June 30 if necessary, then take a vacation with his family while considering several job offers.

Rockefeller said several qualified men were being considered as replacements for Lindsey, including Maj. Kenneth McKee, commander of the Highway Patrol Division, who was promoted from captain May 25.

The rest of the vacancies are to be filled within the department, which apparently will clear the way for the agency to hire its first Negro troopers.

Lindsey said last week that the department was moving toward the employment of some Negro troopers on July 1, and one—Marion Taylor Jr., 27, a patrolman on the Little Rock police force—was placed on the eligibility list May 25. Five others are under consideration.

Engineers Accept Lock, Dam No. 1

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Army Engineers toured the dam, rode a tugboat through the lock and accepted Lock and Dam No. 1 on the Arkansas River Thursday.

The contractor who built the $15.8 million structure, C. H. Leavell, president of the C.H. Leavell Co., of El Paso, Tex., turned it over to Col. Frank Bane, district engineer for the Little Rock District of the Army Engineers.

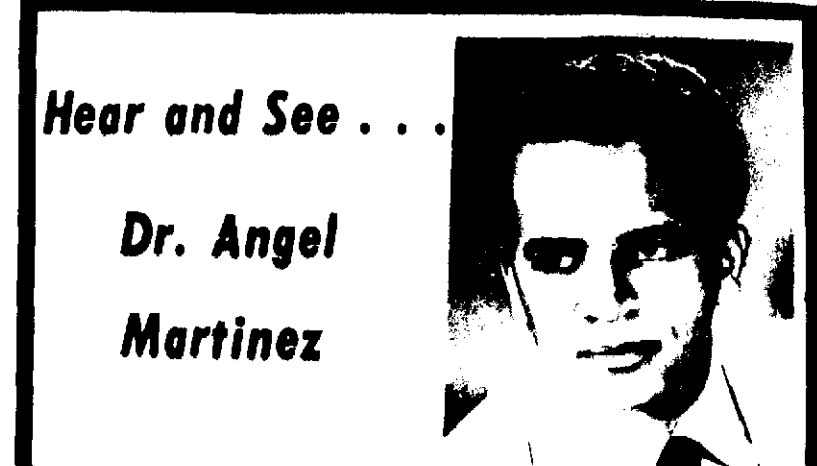

The lock and dam had been under construction for 3 1/2 years. It is located in Arkansas County at the southern end of the White River National Wildlife Refuge.

The structure is one of 17 that will make the Arkansas River navigable from the Mississippi River to Pine Bluff and Little Rock by December 1968, Fort Smith by December 1969 and Catoosa, Okla., the port for Tulsa, by 1970.

Veterinarian Dies at 78

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Dr. Charles Douglas Stubbs, aged 78, of North Little Rock, former state veterinarian, died Thursday. Dr. Stubbs, a native of Missouri, was state veterinarian from 1933 to 1941.

Calif. Group Backs Tower

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sen. John G. Tower of Texas is being backed for the Republican presidential nomination by a citizens' committee headed by James Drury, television star of "The Virginian."

Drury told a news conference Thursday that his group is neither blessed nor frowned upon by the conservative Texan senator. But, Drury said, Tower is fully informed of his group's activities.

The actor called Tower a "progressive conservative" who could beat President Johnson again. The reference was to Tower's victory last year over Democrat Wagoner Carr, who was backed by Johnson and Democratic Texas Gov. John B. Connally.

Ethics No Issue in Court Martial

By DON MCKEE

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Civilian attorneys, blocked in their attempt to use medical ethics as a defense, squared off with a young Army prosecutor today for closing arguments in the court-martial of a captain who refused to train Green Beret medics.

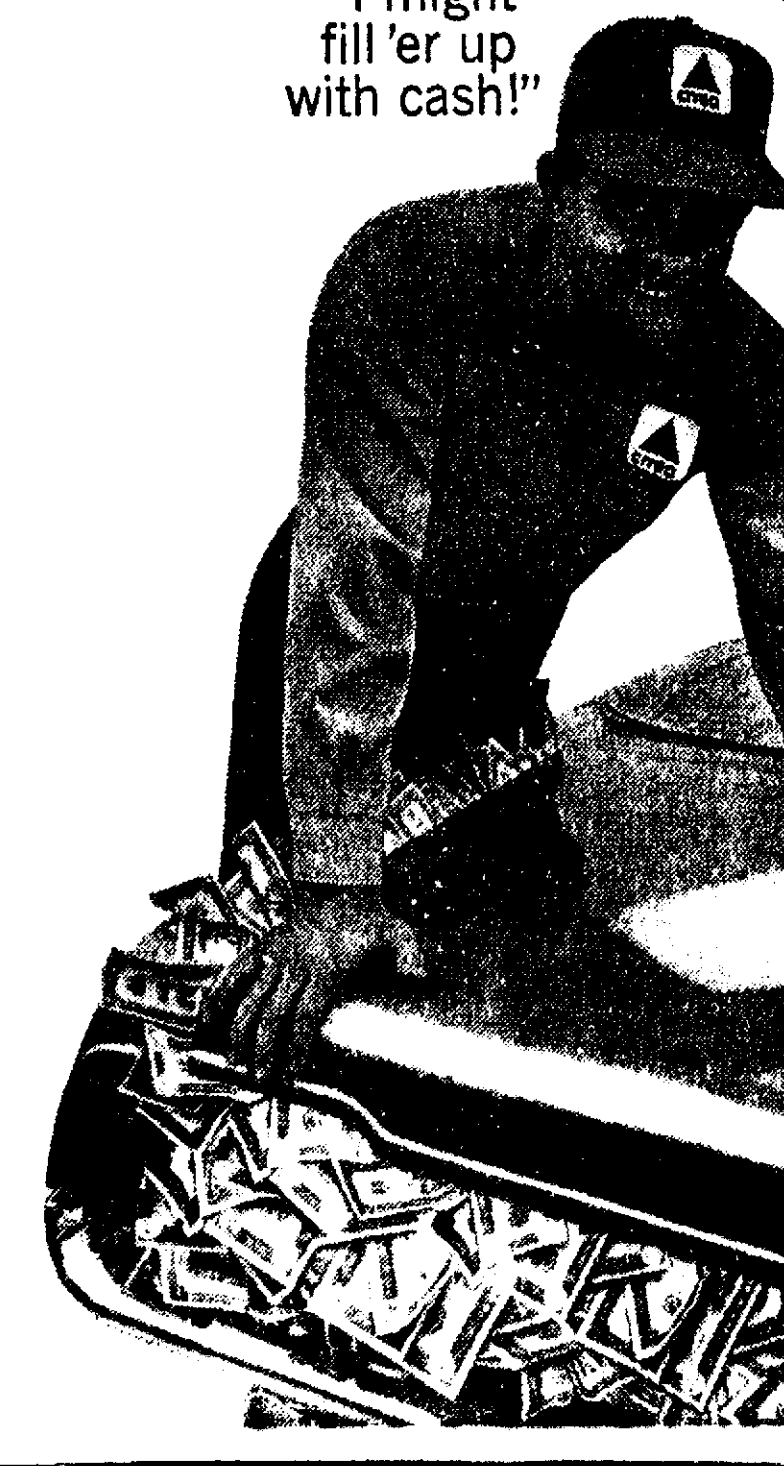

A verdict in the court-martial of Capt. Howard B. Levy, 30, of Brooklyn, N.Y., might come Saturday if the 10-member tribunal decides to work into the weekend. The 28-year-old prosecutor, Capt. Richard M. Shusterman, requested a Saturday session be held if necessary.

On Thursday, the military judge knocked down the last major defense theory that medical ethics was a legitimate reason for Levy to refuse to train the Vietnam-bound medics.

"I might fill 'er up with cash!"

Col. Earl V. Brown, the military judge, held that Levy had a right under the constitution to disagree with U.S. foreign policy, even in strong and provocative language, but had no privilege of a doctor that would prohibit disobedience to a lawful command.

The defense had contended that Levy, a dermatologist, would have to violate his professional and moral standards if forced to train medics he believed are combat soldiers and use their medical duties for political purposes.

Levy could receive a maximum of 11 years in prison if convicted of all charges, including disobeying an order and promoting disloyalty.

Defense attorneys, led by Charles Morgan Jr. of the American Civil Liberties Union, failed Thursday in another move for dismissal of the disloyalty charges that stem from a letter Levy wrote to a soldier in Vietnam in 1965.

"I'll deny the motion," Brown said.

Morgan protested, "There is no way to write a letter any more without saying, 'Please don't be disloyal or disaffected.' I don't see how this could prejudice good order and discipline in the Army."

The two charges which Morgan sought to have dismissed accuse Levy of conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman, and of advising, counseling, urging and attempting to cause insubordination, disloyalty and refusal of duty.

The Army charges that in the letter Levy described U.S. foreign policy as "diabolical evil," praised Communists, declared he would refuse to serve in Vietnam, and encouraged the recipient of the letter to give up his involvement in the war.

Seven of the 10 members of the court panel must agree for a conviction on any charge. Any number less means acquittal. If there is a conviction, then the defense may offer testimony and arguments for a reduced or suspended sentence before the tribunal fixes the penalty.

Television and Radio

By GENE HANDSAKER
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Some questions — and answers:

— In this season of tired reruns, can drama lovers look for more first-time specials like CBS' splendid "Ivanov" last Tuesday night?

No. The airwaves are barren of fresh drama until fall.

An ABC aide says: "Drama is nearly out of style. 'Stage 67' took a terrible beating in the ratings and will be on only intermittently in the fall, under another title."

Serious emoting does indeed have a hard time in TV-land. Anton Chekhov's grim to giddy "Ivanov" offered moving performances by Sir John Gielgud, Claire Bloom and others.

But an overnight audience survey indicated it played a weak third to "Peyton Place" and a Debbie Reynolds movie.

Speaking of specials, CBS' next, June 12, is "Charlie Brown Falls in Love," the Peanuts cartoon crowd which was twice nominated for Emmy awards for past performances. "The Anderson Platoon," filmed in Vietnam, is a CBS news documentary for July 4. "Leonardo da Vinci," on the "Summer Focus" series tonight, is a two-year-old repeat of an ABC news documentary.

— Will "Gunsmoke" have less violence in the fall? For years aired Saturdays at 10 p.m., it switches to Mondays at 7:30 p.m., when the kiddies are still up.

"We've decided there will be no changes," says producer John Mantley. "It still will be as hard and honest as we feel it has always been. 'Gunsmoke' never has indulged in violence for the sake of violence."

The bad guys still will get shot or beaten up. "That was part of the Old West," said Mantley. Yet he conceded there will be one modification: no more scenes where Amanda Blake, playing saloon keeper Kitty, is manhandled by ruffians.

— Will networks ever stop pitting their strongest shows opposite each other? The Smothers Brothers compete with "Bonanza," Ed Sullivan with Walt Disney's "Wonderful World of Color."

The practice called counter-programming, is here to stay. "It's competition," says a network spokesman.

A programming chief adds: "Each network tries to get the strongest line-up and biggest audience it can."

Bob Thomas at the Movies

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The well-scrubbed boy of 10, a tiny camera clutched in his chubby hands, planted himself before Julie Andrews in the lobby of the Algonquin Hotel.

"Could I take your picture, please?" he asked.

Julie Andrews had spent all morning under the hot lights for location scenes of "Star!" in which she plays the late Gertrude Lawrence. She smiled wanly and halted while the excited boy focused his camera. He snapped the shutter, but the flashbulb failed to go off.

"That's all right; I've got fast film," he said bravely.

"Poor boy!" said Miss Andrews as she rode the elevator to the fourth floor suite reserved for her use. "I'm sure the film will turn out black, but he was too flustered to take another photo."

She entered the suite with the entourage expected for the superstar of the 1960s: hairdresser, makeup man, wardrobe woman, a lady photographer who snaps Julie Andrews at lunch, Julie Andrews in a dress fitting, etc. All these plus a reporter from Hollywood and a Pinkerton man who guards the $250,000 diamond ring she is wearing as a prop in the movie.

"There was another fan this morning at my hotel," Miss Andrews reflected. "When I came out of the elevator, I could see her startled face and hear the gasp. It was really asthmatic, and the voice came wheezily."

"Obviously she had been waiting several hours for me to step out of the elevator. She presented the scrapbook for an autograph and could scarcely breathe out a thank you. It was scary."

There is a faint air of melancholy in Julie Andrews' triumphal return to New York City. She is at the height of a remarkable career; three of her films, including "The Sound of Music," financially the most successful movie in history, are enjoying long runs in Manhattan.

Her voice has its familiar lilt as she races from one subject to another, yet the gaiety of Maria and Millie is missing. The fan magazines suggest she is torn between her husband, designer Tony Walton, who is usually a continent or ocean away, and director Blake Edwards, who has been closer at hand.

It's possible. Her dabbings in psychiatry indicate a certain disquietude. But an underlying element of the Julie Andrews career is the fact that she is a serious worker, and has been so since she was thrust on English music hall stages as a singing prodigy.

She has come a far distance since she arrived in New York a dozen years ago to star in the spoof of the 1920s, "The Girl Friend."

Antwerp will allow them to transfer to an American ship there bound for New York. Otherwise, I shall have to keep them aboard and take them to our home port in Norway," he said.

"They are being taken well care of and don't seem in the least worried."

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottal

CANDIDATE FOR MEANEST MAN

Dear Helen: I live in a new neighborhood with quite a few children under the age of six. My next door neighbor has no children and so put up a fence to keep them out of his yard. The only thing is that he put in a galvanized fence with the spikes up!

My children have been taught never to climb the fence, but I had wanted others playing in our yard might want to get a ball or something. I'm in constant fear they might slip and fall on top of the spikes, getting badly hurt or putting an eye out.

I have asked our neighbor to turn the spikes down, but he says the kids have no business on his fence and it is their tough luck; he is not responsible. — WONDERRING

Dear Won: Why not ask your insurance agent to take a look at the spiked fence? Perhaps this crochety neighbor will listen when an expert tells him big lawsuits result from endangering children's lives. — H.

Dear Helen: My husband and

I visited our newlywed daughter and son-in-law in another state. On leaving, we asked them to spend a week with us this summer at a rented beach cottage. They readily agreed, and then suggested that her in-laws join us. What could I do but say, "That's just fine."

Now all four are planning to come in on us, and the cottage isn't that big. I had wanted rest during our one week off, and also time to enjoy a vacation with our four younger children. Should we change our vacation to another month when they can't come? —DISAPPOINTED

Dear Dis: Why not level with your daughter — then tell her you can arrange to rent a near-by cottage at a price that won't level the combined bank accounts? You'll no doubt enjoy their presence, if you don't have to feed and house them. — H.

Dear Helen: I am a masseur by profession and a good one. I don't claim that massage cures everything, but I have built up a good reputation for scientific treatment. I look on myself as a doctor and have brought much comfort to people.

The trouble is my wife objects to my having ladies as patients. I am the only masseur in this town and it's hard to turn them away. Embarrassing too. What can I do to convince her? — HEALING HANDS.

Dear H. H.: Why not "hire" your wife as your nurse? Then she'd realize there is no cause for alarm. — H.

Dear Helen: I've had 50 years of a bad marriage. My wife was untrue to me, but I didn't divorce her because of the children. Now they're through college and gone. I don't want to live with them, I don't think my wife would give me a divorce now.

I met a lady I kept company with before I was married. She has lost her husband. If I should take this lady in as my housekeeper, could my wife come along and put her out? We have good habits: no whiskey or tobacco. — LONELY

Dear Lonely: If your wife lives with you, she could certainly put the new lady out. But if she refuses to live with you, then, at your age, you need a housekeeper, and, at your age, there would scarcely be much talk among the neighbors.

If all depends on whether or not you're separated physically. — H.

Two Teams Lose Games in the 9th

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
The way Phil Niekro's knuckleball was dancing around, it should have been wearing ballerina's slippers.
Or perhaps a suit of armor for catcher Joe Torre would have been more appropriate.
Torre was the unfortunate fellow on the receiving end of Niekro's fluttering floater Thursday night. The Atlanta catcher was charged with two passed balls in a nightmarish ninth inning as St. Louis rallied for a pair of runs and then went on to defeat the Braves 5-4 in 10 innings.

The ninth inning was just as bleak for Leo Durocher's Chicago Cubs, who saw a two-run lead evaporate into a 7-6 Cincinnati victory. In other National League games, Houston dropped New York 4-1, San Francisco pounded Pittsburgh 7-1 and Philadelphia defeated Los Angeles 6-1.

Denny Lemaster was sailing along on a six-hitter with a 4-2 lead as the Cardinals came to bat in the bottom of the ninth. John Romano opened with a bouncer to Clete Boyer, but the usually sure-handed third baseman threw the ball away for a two-base error.

Edi Lemaster, enter Niekro. Dick Hughes ran for Romano and moved to third as Niekro served a wild pitch.

Lou Brock's sacrifice fly brought Hughes home. Then Julian Javier walked and two of Niekro's knucklers fluttered their way past Torre, moving Javier to third. Curt Flood's single scored Javier with the tying run.

"Those balls were really moving," said Flood. "If he had been throwing strikes, he'd have been vicious. I didn't know where the ball was going, but he didn't either."

Niekro was gone in the 10th when Phil Gagliano singled and raced home on Bobby Tolan's two-out triple for the game-winning run.

The Cubs suffered through a similar ninth inning against the Reds. Cal Koonce was protecting a 6-4 lead built mostly on five runs batted in by Billy Williams, who socked a pair of home runs.

Koonce struck out the first two batters in the bottom of the ninth, but Floyd Robinson beat out an infield hit. Vada Pinson's triple brought Robinson home, and moments later Pinson scored the tying run on a wild pitch.

Then Pete Rose walked and was safe at second on an attempted force play when Glenn Beckert dropped the throw for his third error of the game. Deron Johnson, who had singled home two runs in the eighth, walked, loading the bases and Tommy Helms drilled a single, scoring Rose with the winner.

Mike Cuellar fired a three-hitter as the Astros handed the struggling Mets their fifth straight loss. Cuellar, who struck out nine, also drove in a run with a double.

Rookie Norm Miller stroked three hits, scored one run and drove in another for the Astros. Ed Matthews socked his fourth home run of the season and career number 497.

Gaylord Perry pitched six no-hit innings against the Pirates and finished with a two-hitter as the Giants moved past Pittsburgh into third place.

Dick Dietz and Jesus Alou homered for San Francisco.

Rich Allen drove in four runs for the Phillies — three of them on a sixth-inning home run — against the Dodgers.

Larry Jackson scattered eight hits and had the Dodgers shut out until the ninth when Los Angeles snapped a 23-inning runless skid on Jim Hickman's triple.

Proud Clarion Going in Belmont Stakes

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Proud Clarion, winner of the Kentucky Derby and third in the Preakness, had history, a healthy trainer and a shift to one of the nation's top riders going for him as entries were made today for the 99th running of the $125,000-added Belmont Stakes at Aqueduct Saturday.

The names of 10 3-year-olds, headed by Proud Clarion and favored Damascus of Preakness fame, were slated to be in the entry box by 10:30 a.m., EDT.

If all are in the gate for the 5:30 p.m., EDT, start Saturday, the 1 1/2-mile third leg of the Triple Crown will be worth $149,700, with $105,950 earmarked for the winner. Second place will be worth $25,000, third $12,500 and fourth $6,250.

The oldest of the three races comprising the Triple will be televised by CBS from 5 p.m.-5:45 p.m., EDT.

If Proud Clarion, owned by John Galbreath's Darby Dan Farm, wins he'll be following in the footsteps of another Darby Dan star—Chateaugay. The last time a horse won the Derby, was beaten in the Preakness and then captured the Belmont was in 1963. The horse was Chateaugay.

Braulio Baeza, who rode Chateaugay, will be aboard Proud Clarion in a shift of riders from Bobby Ussery. Galbreath, who played a major role in Baeza buying up his contract from Fred Hooper, had wanted the poker-faced Panamanian to ride Proud Clarion in the Derby. But Braulio already was committed to Successor, the 1966 2-year-old champion.

Loyd (Boo) Gentry, who battled an attack of hepatitis while prepping Proud Clarion for the Derby and then was hospitalized while an assistant took over for the Preakness, has been back running things the past week.

"He looks as sharp as ever," said Gentry today before entering the son of Hall to Reason. "He's not as full chested and broad in the hind quarters as I would like of a horse asked to go 1 1/2 miles. But he's rangy and has a long stride that can eat up the ground."

Meantime, Damascus, the 6-5 choice who'll carry the famous white and red dotted silks of Mrs. Edith Bancroft, remained Statistical note: The Washington Senators have not lost a game since making their celebrated trade for Mike Epstein.

Whether that happy situation will continue once Epstein enters the line-up is problematical.

The Senators have won four straight since obtaining the big first baseman from Baltimore, Monday, including Thursday night's 1-0 decision over California.

In the only other American League action Thursday, Minnesota blanked Boston 4-0 and Cleveland outhit Detroit 8-2.

In the National League, Cincinnati edged Chicago 7-6, Houston downed New York 4-1, San Francisco blasted Pittsburgh 7-1, St. Louis beat Atlanta 5-4 in 10 innings and Philadelphia whipped Los Angeles 6-1.

Epstein is due to enter the Washington line-up as soon as Manager Gil Hodges feels he has worked off the effects of his self-imposed exile when the Orioles wanted to send him down to the minors. In the interim, the Senators have won a doubleheader from Kansas City and two games from California.

In Thursday's game, Camilo Pascual suddenly returned to the winning form that has been eluding him for the last few years, limiting the Angels to four hits in the tight game.

The curvballing right-hander scattered three singles and gave up a double to Jose Cardenal in the sixth. Cardenal moved to third on Jay Johnstone's fly to center but was out attempting to steal home.

The lone run of the game came in the third inning when Ed Brinkman singled, moved to second on a sacrifice bunt by Pascual and scored on Bob Savery's single to left.

Dean Chance came up with another brilliant pitching performance, allowing the Red Sox, big hitters of late, just five hits and winning his ninth game of the season against only two defeats.

Celebrating his 26th birthday, Chance struck out 10 and allowed only one Boston runner as far as third base. Home runs by Bob Allison, his sixth, and Russ Nixon, his first, gave Chance all the runs he needed.

Another pitcher, John O'Donoghue, provided the difference in the Detroit-Cleveland tussle, but he did it with his bat as much as with his arm.

O'Donoghue's grand-slam homer was the big blow in a six-run sixth inning for the Indians, who knocked the Tigers out of first place.

The Cleveland left-hander allowed just two hits until the eighth when he was replaced by Orlando Pena after Mickey Stanley belted a homer for the Tigers.

Chicago, which didn't play Thursday, moved back into the league lead by six percentage points.

In seclusion at Delaware Park, Trainer Frank Whiteley Jr. said the son of Sword Dancer wouldn't arrive at the scene of the Belmont until late today. He is following the same procedure that gave him a horse perfectly relaxed for the Preakness after undergoing a case of nerves before the Derby.

The Knockdown the Favorites club settled pretty much on the well-traveled Reason to Hall and Canada's Cool Reception with a few pointing to Prinkipo as a dangerous contender on the basis of his early but untested speed against a field of this class.

Since the middle of April, Reason to Hall has made a round trip to California, another to Louisville, Ky., and a third to Baltimore and got a piece of five purses. He finished fourth in both the Kentucky Derby and Preakness and came up with a victory in the California Derby.

Cool Reception, 1966 Canadian 2-year-old champion who was not quite ready for the Kentucky Derby, equaled a track record at Woodbine and worked 1 1/2 miles in 2:32 3/5 before leaving Canada.

Prinkipo, handled by Jimmy Conway who trained Chateaugay, goes into the race off three front-running victories and backed by an ancestry that includes two Belmont winners—One Count and Count Fleet.

A victory by any of the others—Gentleman James, Blasting Charge, Gaylord's Feather, Nohoc's Bullet and Favorable Turn—would be even more of an upset than when Proud Clarion took the Kentucky Derby at odds of 30-1.

Hill's Hole in One Gets Him a Car

By BOB GILBERT
Associated Press Sports Writer
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Babe Hiskey trailed leader Dave Hill going into the second round of the $100,000 Memphis Open Golf Tournament today, but the new car he won for a hole-in-one soothed the pain.

Hill, from Jackson, Mich., shot a 5-under-par 85 in the opening round Thursday and used a powerful driving game to post an eagle 3, three birdies and 14 pars.

Chasing Hill as play resumed today were Bert Weaver at 66 and four others bunched at 67—Gary Player, Harold Henning, Dave Marr and Hiskey.

Next came Dave Stockton, Dave Ragan, Steve Spray and Randi Petri with 68s. Defending champion Bert Yancey shot a par-70, and former champ Jack Nicklaus soared to a 77.

Hiskey, 28, of Burley, Idaho, jumped to an early lead with a 7-iron hole-in-one on the 182-yard 12th. And he missed another hole-in-one by two inches on the 17th.

But the putter was his big stick and perhaps the deadliest club on the course. Hiskey was not accurate with his tee shots and he hit only 12 greens in regulation. But he tied for first on the greens—with eight one-putts and nine two-putts.

A 30-footer on the 500-yard 16th gave him an eagle-3, and he sank 25-foot putts for a birdie and a par.

His success on the greendates back to 1965 when he changed his grip and went on to double his earnings from the previous year. He tied for ninth in the Oklahoma City Open last week and has won $5,597 this year.

"I thought the course played hard because of the rain this week," Hiskey said. "But my putter was really going. I had an interesting round. There wasn't a dull moment."

A tee shot soared out of bounds and triggered a triple bogey on the last hole, when he was 6 under, and cost him the lead.

The new car Hiskey won for his ace was awarded by a national automobile rental firm.

U.S. Soccer Team Must Play Rules

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — Sir Stanley Rous of Britain, president of the International Soccer Football Federation, said Thursday the problem of whether or not to sanction the National Professional League is in the hands of the United States Soccer Football Association.

"This is not our problem. The unsanctioned National Professional Soccer League is at liberty to adopt what methods it chooses, but unless they abide by the USSFA rules they will not be recognized," Rous said.

Rous explained that his organization recognizes the governing soccer organizations in each country, who in turn recognize the leagues.

Ken Mackler, commissioner of the NFL, is here attending the annual meeting of the international soccer group. In order to gain sanction for his 10-team league, he reportedly has agreed to meet the conditions under which the 12-team United Soccer Association was recognized by the American governing body last year. The conditions include a $10,000 franchise fee, 10 per cent of all gate receipts, plus four per cent of television income.

Dickson in Quarterfinals of Tourney

By RONALD THOMSON
FORMBY, England (AP) — Bob Dickson, an American Walker Cup player, went into the quarter-finals of the British Amateur Golf championship today and said: "This is one time I'll have to avoid a nervous start."

Dickson of Muskogee, Fla., is one of the four Americans in the last eight. The others are Jim Grant of Wethersfield, Conn., Ron Cerrudo, San Rafael, Calif., and Marty Fleckman, Houston, Tex.

"They say I never look worried on the course," the 23-year-old Dickson said. "But they don't know how I feel. Each day is different for me, and sometimes I'm a very, very nervous man."

"The thing I worry about is starting to play my opponent's game in match play. As long as I try to play just like in a medal tournament I'm all right. If I can keep beating par I'll be okay."

Bob Murphy, Nichols, Fla., who was knocked out Thursday, defeated Dickson by one stroke in the U.S. National Amateur Championship in 1965 at Tulsa, Okla. That defeat only came after Dickson had been penalized four strokes for carrying an extra club.

"Ever since that disastrous business of the extra club I check my bag six or seven times," Dickson said. "And so does my caddy. We're going to check it 10 times today."

The draw for the quarter-finals: Dickson vs. Alan Moss of England; Grant vs. Gordon Clark, England; Cerrudo vs. Mike Bonallack, England, and Fleckman vs. Bill Murray of Scotland.

The semifinals over Formby's 6,854-yard, par 72 links will be played in the afternoon.

The 36 hole final will be decided Saturday.

In Thursday's round of 16 Dickson defeated Ronnie Shade, Scottish champion, 2 and 1; Grant knocked out John Young, Scotland, 5 and 4; Cerrudo defeated Ed Tutwiler, Indianapolis, Ind., by one hole; Murray defeated Murphy by one hole, and Fleckman defeated British Walker Cupper Mike Attenborough at the 19th after squaring the match with an eagle two at the home hole.

Romeo Rapped by Some But He Still Wins

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — Some folks put the rap on Romeo Hanover, the Buckpasser of harness racing, but the 4-year-old pacer just keeps on winning like this thoroughbred contemporary.

The heir apparent to the harness horse of the year title, in succession to the now retired Bret Hanover, made it 21 straight Thursday night in the $100,000 International Pace at the Yonkers Raceway.

The Gaslite Belles held their annual banquet, Tuesday night, May 30, at the Chuck Wagon Inn. Closing a very successful year of bowling. The restaurant was decorated with bowling balls and Magnolia blooms. The music was furnished by the Rainbo Melody Boys. Edna Gibson, Suzie Dalley and Margaret Lester sang vocal solos. The group didn't realize they had so much talent among them.

After a very good dinner, Vice President, Dolores McBride, and Sec.-Treas. Pat Dunne presented the special awards of the year. Since the season was split there was a roll off for first place team.

1st Place Team - Perry's Truck Stop.
2nd Place Team - Greening Ellis Ins.
1st Half - High Game - Mary Reilly 231.
2nd Half - High Game - Katherine Kalba - 230.
1st Half - High Series - Katherine Kalba - 523.
2nd Half High Series - Jimmie Nicholas 564.

Immediately following the banquet new officers were elected for the summer league which will start Tuesday, June 6. They are as follows: President, Barbara Gausche, Prescott, Vice Pres. - Dolores McBride, Hope, Sec. Tres. Pat Dunne, Hope, and Sgt. at arms - Marguerite Avery, Prescott.

International and beat the 11-year-old Cardigan Bay who won the race last year and was accustomed to long distances in his native New Zealand.

What happened? Driver George Sholly took Romeo away from the No. 1 post position and turned back all challenges to bring home the 1-4 favorite by one length over Cardigan Bay.

For about five seconds around the first turn, Sholly yielded the lead to True Duane and driver Chris Boring, but he regained it at the end of the first quarter and stayed in front the rest of the way.

Cardigan Bay picked up $25,000 for finishing second and became the second all-time money-winning harness horse with $892,571. He passed Su Mac Lad who retired with $885,000. Bret Hanover is No. 1 on the list with $922,516.

Romeo, who will race next in the $50,000 Good Time pace at Yonkers next Thursday night, earned $50,000 for his 34th victory in 38 starts. He now has earned a total of $617,263 for his owners, the Lucky Star Stable and Morton Finner of New York, with 10 per cent of the purses being divided between Sholly and trainer Jerry Silverman.

FAMED FOR HUMOR

And Yet, Master of Strategy in the Brooks-
Baxter Crisis

By Charlean Moss Williams

The name of Augustus H. Garland of Arkansas is a household word with every student of Arkansas history. He was known far and wide as the most brilliant man in the legal profession in his day—so said Gladstone, the great British statesman.

Though born in another state, Gus Garland is Arkansas' own son. Coming from Tennessee with his parents when a mere infant, he grew to manhood and spent his life on Arkansas soil, with the exception of a few years of his public career in Washington City.

The Garlands came to this state first on Red river, at or near what is now Garland City, the town taking its name from the Garland family. From the farm on Red river, they moved to Spring Hill, and remained there until the year 1844, at which time Augustus was ten or twelve years old, when they moved to Washington. Mrs. Garland was widowed about this time, her husband having died on the farm.

A Brilliant Student

Washington offered the advantages of schools. Mrs. Garland must have had a vision of what her boy was afterward to become, for she immediately placed him in school here under the tutelage of Colonel Banks, who was at the time head of the Washington Male academy where the boy soon showed marked intelligence, outstripping his classmates in learning. There were two of the Garland boys; the other one, Rufus, was named after his father.

They attended college in Kentucky, after which they were sent to England and completed their education at Oxford. In the meantime, Mrs. Garland was married to Colonel Thomas Hubbard, of Washington, and after the boys came home, Colonel Hubbard took Augustus into partnership with him in the law practice, the firm being Hubbard & Garland.

Garland was admitted to the bar in the old courthouse at Washington, where his first cases are recorded.

As every student of state history is familiar with Garland's achievements as a statesman, we will not go into the detail of his public life, but make note of Garland as the boy and man.

Mr. Garland was a devoted husband and father, and possessed that rare and genial gift—a happy nature that won for him friends in all walks of life. He was always bubbling over with fun, and loved to tell a joke on his friends whenever the occasion arose. Once during a term of court, when E. W. Gantt was prosecuting a case in which a young lad was being tried for some misdemeanor, he said something which the lad's mother, who was present, became very indignant, and rising from her seat she walked over to him and said, "I'll kick you on the seat of your pants for that, sir," for something that meant the same thing and executing the threat right there in the presence of the judge, jury and spectators, she was ordered out of the court room. Mr. Garland used to tell this joke on Mr. Gantt with great gusto.

Gus Garland had a stentorian voice, and no one ever seemed to enjoy a hearty laugh more than he. When a boy he never let his play fellows get the best of him, and he was always playing pranks on somebody.

A Narrow Escape

The boys of the town had a "swimming hole" in the creek near town where they used to go for a swim and dive. One day Garland, Chas. Eiter and two companions tied themselves off to the creek for the usual swim. They stripped off their clothes and made ready for a "high dive," when one of them said, "Let's see who can stay under the longest." They all plunged in. After remaining under the water as long as they could stand it, three of them came up, one at a time, but Gus Garland remained under. Becoming alarmed at his prolonged stay, they decided that they had better see about him. They didn't commence their search any too soon. On investigation they found that his head had become entangled in some muscadine vines at the bottom of the deep hole, and they had to work fast to effect his rescue. When they had got him safe on the bank, they began to untie him about "staying under the longest," but he didn't relish the joke a little and picked up a stick and went for them with a vengeance. They scattered in every direction. He then went back and picked up a big rock, tied their clothes up in a bundle around it and threw them into the creek, then dressed himself and went home.

Mr. Garland was a life-long friend of the writer's father, was present at his marriage, and, in a message of condolence on the death of our father, he stated that he was the only person still living who was present at the ceremony.

This was in 1898. Mr. Garland died in 1899.

Augustus Garland was kind-hearted, sympathetic and charitable, as was also Mrs. Garland. Mrs. Garland was before her marriage to Mr. Garland, Miss Virginia Sanders, daughter of Simon T. Sanders, who held the office of clerk for thirty years, and was also postmaster for a number of years.

Wife in Washington

When the war was in progress, Mrs. Garland stayed at home with her father's family while Mr. Garland was away on his official duties with the government. She did much to alleviate the sufferings of the sick and wounded soldiers who were housed at a few slaves, and Mrs. Garland prepared food and dainties for the soldiers and sent it to them by her servants, as did other women of the town. She also had the soldiers' washing done.

The Garlands were not wealthy, but were what one would consider in that day and time, in good circumstances. Garland died in Washington City on July 26, 1899. In conversation with one of his friends and colleagues at a short time before his death, he said that "nothing would please me better when my time comes, than to die in the midst of an argument." His death occurred while making a speech before the Supreme Court of the United States. The last words he uttered were:

"My contention is"—the sentence was never finished; he was stricken with apoplexy. He had said when he was a boy that his ambition was to be Attorney General of the United States. His ambition was realized.

Garland's Coup D'Etat

When Arkansas was thrown into a state of revolution over the Brooks and Baxter fight for the office of Governor in 1872, and both factions had exhausted all means in their power to bring order out of chaos, Garland, who was championing the Baxter side, arose to the occasion in such a daring stroke of policy as no one but Garland would attempt.

It will be remembered that Brooks claimed to be the duly-elected governor, while Baxter had already been inaugurated. Baxter was forebly ejected from the office, and Brooks took possession. Baxter proclaimed martial law. This he was advised to do, and was told that nothing could be done without prompt action, but that if he acted decisively within thirty minutes after martial law was proclaimed the whole delegation of his adherents would guarantee a strong military force. He did act; martial law was proclaimed. Before midnight a thousand men had enlisted in support of his cause and the militia began pouring in from all directions and Little Rock became the theater of war. Brooks in turn fortified the statehouse and called out the militia. Bonts and trains brought recruits to each party. The situation was telegraphed to President Grant in Washington.

Meanwhile, the Brooks faction was to call together a body of supreme judges to proclaim Brooks governor. Two of the judges were to come from Fort Smith. At this point in the situation Garland called for a man to volunteer and go across the river and board the train as it neared Little Rock, and kidnap the two judges from Fort Smith, and thus held up their meeting, or stop their meeting, or stop their decision in favor of Brooks.

Colonel Jim Williams, who was then sheriff of Hempstead county, was in Little Rock at that time with a company of volunteers. He offered to go. He took two men of his company, Ab Smith and Jack Hervey with him, crossed the river, and waited. When the train bearing the two "high-hats" stopped on the other side of the river, the waiting men got aboard, arrested the dignitaries, and carried them into a dense thicket, where they kept them about a day and a half—until Garland could hear from Grant.

When the message from the president came, a party was sent out into the woods with instructions to "bring their captives in." It is related that they dropped their men down in front of a hotel and never saw them afterward.

It is needless to say that the stratagem worked. The Legislature was called in special session and decided the case in favor of Brooks. Grant issued his proclamation in favor of Baxter and commanded Brooks and his faction to disperse. (This story was somewhat enlarged on and contributed to F. W. Allsup's Episodes of Romantic Arkansas.)

Early Washington Stores Are Listed

First Mercantile Establishment Opened by John Johnson in 1826

In 1826 John Johnson opened the first store in Washington. At that time the store was the next south of town, followed by Abraham Black, Matthew Gray, Matt Moss and Christian Mirkle, the last named under the firm name of Mirkle & Moss. The town grew rapidly and for many years was the principal place in northwestern Arkansas.

It is difficult to go back further than the 30's as records are not available between 1826 and 1855, but beginning with the latter date the principal business firms were:

Wholesale and retail dry goods store: David Black and Brothers; Ludlow Britton, wholesale and retail dealer; W. B. Green and Cheatham, retail dry goods store; A. B. Cox, handling dry goods in connection with a saloon; John and Wash Britt, retail dry goods store; Bill Price, dry goods and groceries; Alexander and Tom Higgs, saddle and harness shop; August Kyle, tin-shop and saloon; Wiseberg, dry goods and groceries; Chase, Knox and Jacobs, carriages, bugies and wagons; A. O. Warner, photography; Charles Peyton, tailor; Richard Dugger, tailor; Matt and Green Cheatham, general merchandise; George Davis, druggist; Charles Phillips candy store.

In 1866: Henry Lazarus, druggist and supplies; John Horn, dry goods store; John Morgan, dry goods and groceries; Phillips and Mack Parker, dry goods and groceries; John Mayor, dry goods and groceries; John Levinson, dry goods and groceries; Hester, dry goods and wholesale groceries; Paup and Jett, dry goods and groceries; E. K. Williamson, livery stable; Dr. Walker, drug store; Solomon Baldwin, tin shop; E. Weidemann, dry goods; A. N. Crouch, silversmith; C. M. Conway and Phil Cox, dry goods and notions; Lowery and English, dry goods; Dr. Hinton and Brother, druggist and dry goods; Dr. W. P. Hart, drug store; Drs. Curran and Knox, druggist.

From 1860 until the big fire in 1874 or '75, other merchants were: S. E. Hughes, dry goods; Wash Houston, cotton and groceries; W. H. Curran and A. C. Baird, general merchandise; Holman and Ware, wholesale dry goods; Hart and Thomas, dry goods; Williams and Baird, Jett and Sissy B. Jack and Cohen, general merchandise, and later the Rosenbergs.

Doctors were: Dutton, Curran, Carrington, and Barnes, who also carried drugs; Britton and Andrews, and these whose names have passed out of memory.

Of hotels: There were in 1855 the Wallace Hotel, the J. D. Jones Hotel (of six stories and 100 rooms), the High Hotel of 80 rooms, the Cy Smith Hotel of 50 rooms, and the D. R. Warr Hotel.

"Our Reputation Is Your Safeguard"

Twenty four years ago in a little building on the corner of Main and Division Streets, the doors of George W. Robison & Co. were opened for business. Although the stock of merchandise was meager and the building in which it was kept was small, it's founder had vision. It was his firm belief that there was a need in Hope for a modern department store. He started out to build for Hope and Southwest Arkansas.

Five years after the opening of the store the business had grown to a point that there was a need for expansion. In order to accommodate a larger stock and increased business, the store was moved into a larger building on Elm Street. Business continued to gain and in 1922 another move was necessary. Half of the present location was taken in this time and in another five years "The Robison Building" was added to provide more room for increased stocks and in order to better serve the people of Hope and surrounding territory.

In 1929 Geo. W. Robison & Co. was again expanded. This time a store was opened in another key city of Southwest Arkansas—Nashville. The same good service and quality merchandise offered the people of Hope was extended to the people of Nashville. It met with such success that in the early part of 1930 a store was opened in another key city of Southwest Arkansas—Prescott.

Throughout the growth of the business the founder never lost sight of the fact that his success was built on the loyalty of his friends and customers. Disregarding attractive offers from the outside, he chose to stay and build for Southwest Arkansas.

Truly a home institution, that is doing its part in the upbuilding of a greater Southwest Arkansas. In the past three years we have returned a total of $163,832.28 into this section.

SALARIES—a total of.....	$106,850.07
TAXES—a total of.....	5,116.75
Miscellaneous	51,865.46

SERVING YOU—this is not just a popular phrase. It is the story of the year round job of our managers, buyers, and salespeople. We take great pride in these managers, buyers and salespeople, and a greater pride in their individual desire to make your shopping more pleasant.

We can give you a guarantee of better value on everything you buy because we demand the same guarantee from the people who make it. We buy our merchandise very, very critically—chiefly because we expect you to buy it from us the same way. Dependability in the goods we sell is one of the watchwords of our business... and we can't assure you of that dependability without going to some little effort.

"More for your money" is probably the most popular set of words in a store's vocabulary. Like most promises, it can mean nothing or it can mean a great deal, depending on who gives it. You can be quite sure, every time you buy something from Robison's that the promise will be performed.

Geo. W. Robison & Co.

Strong Federated Club. Mrs. Jewel Butler presented to each of the five runner-ups a beautiful necklace of white cultured pearls. After the crowning of Miss Debutante, each debutante and her escort joined in a waltz. The ball climaxed with remarks from local and regional president, Mrs. Estelle Spearman.

20 Nuns at Shreveport Experimenting

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) - Twenty nuns of the Roman Catholic order of Daughters of the Cross will start leaving their Shreveport convent soon to begin an experimental religious community in Wisconsin.

"What we are doing has the stamp of approval of the Church," Sister Mary Michael, a spokesman for the nuns, said. "We still have a commitment to live a religious life but we feel we will be more effective in this unstructured type of life."

She said they would wear modern dress and use their legal names. They will live in groups of five or more in a Milwaukee apartment and will divide their earnings among the group.

No financial support will be provided by the Catholic Church.

"We feel that under the present form of religious life, we can't be optimally effective to the needs of today's world. We feel that in living together in smaller groups we will be freer to administer to the needs of the people," Sister Mary Michael said.

North had to scrape all around the bottom of the barrel to dig up his raise to three spades. East passed because his opening bid had been a minimum and his queen of spades had become worthless for play at hearts.

South also passed. His overcall was sound but he had played with North before and had seen some of his competitive raises.

West went on to four hearts and South had a real problem. He could pass and trust that he would beat four hearts or he could go on to four spades. Down one at four spades doubled would only be minus 200 and would represent a good match point score against minus 420 for four hearts bid and made. South went to four spades and West doubled like a shot.

West didn't have much confidence in his double but he had pushed South to game and doubled in the hope that South might misguess the trump situation if he had to guess.

The defense collected four tricks in the red suits and led a third diamond. South ruffed and played his ace of trumps. When both opponents followed first trump lead South stopped to study the problem of a trump finesse.

In rubber bridge he would simply have banded down the king because the drop play is superior as a matter of strict mathematics but this was match point duplicate.

South noted that if spades broke 2-2 the chances were that East would have been set at four hearts but if spades split 3-1, East would have made his game.

Therefore, the only way South could get any sort of decent result would be to find the spades 3-1. South went over to dummy with a club, took the trump finesse and got out for down one and a very good match point score.

Supplementary Thyroid Pills Are Helpful

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
 Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—What causes a slow thyroid? Can it affect both men and women? Can thyroid pills be taken during and after the menopause? Should I take thyroid pills when I am sick with a cold? If untreated, can a slow thyroid cause a nervous breakdown?

A—I assume that your thyroid fails to put out enough thyroid hormone. This may be hereditary; it may be due to a failure of the pituitary to put out sufficient thyroid stimulating hormone; it may be due to surgical removal of too much of an overactive thyroid; or it may be due to a destructive disease of the thyroid. It can affect both men and women.

Neither the menopause nor a cold would affect your need for supplementary thyroid pills. Persons with underactivity of the thyroid that is not treated become dull and apathetic. A nervous breakdown would be more characteristic of an overactive thyroid.

business barons of Vietnam, nearly all Chinese, have shown themselves extremely nimble in the past.

Last year inflation pushed the cost of living index up 70 per cent in Saigon. Since 1962 the cost of living for working families in the capital has rocketed 300 per cent.

It is estimated that if the cost of living goes up much past the 50 per cent mark this year, the effect of last summer's currency devaluation will be wiped out. More devaluation might then be necessary.

Tight control of U.S. military and civilian agency spending already is in effect with the ceiling including even the amount of plasters available for spending in bars, nightclubs and shops.

This could be tightened further but with the expected major boost in U.S. troop strength here, it seems doubtful that even the present line can be held.

A more likely inflation weapon would be to cut U.S. supported projects including those under the Agency for International Development program. The Vietnamese could be expected to resist this strongly since AID has been a pork barrel that has made many Vietnamese generals and politicians rich through corruption.

The U.S. mission could take a tough line on pork barrel projects but it has not done so thus far despite congressional grumbling over the effectiveness of AID dollars.

Most Vietnamese officials would instinctively turn toward rural expenditures if the ax must be wielded. Because the countryside is the cradle of the Viet Cong insurgency, cuts there could be disastrous.

One obvious way to bridle the inflationary trend would be to smash the black market, impose price and wage controls and institute rationing of key items. No serious move has ever been made against the black market which in fact serves a highly useful service.

The distribution system set up for the black market is about the only one capable of getting things to the customers in many areas.

Hackler Would Resign If Board Asked

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—If any member of the Arkansas Game and Fish Commission asked him to resign, he would do so, Game and Fish Director Hugh Hackler said Thursday.

Asked to comment on Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller's statement that he probably was not qualified to serve as director, Hackler said: "That's his opinion about that. I'm just thankful to God for one thing — I don't have to meet his qualifications."

Hackler said he was hired by the commission and was answerable only to the commission and the sportsmen of Arkansas.

Rockefeller has asked for the resignations of all seven Game and Fish Commissioners by noon today. The commissioners met Wednesday in a special session and agreed unanimously not to resign.

Pine Bluff Sue to Stop Garbage Strike

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP)—City Attorney George Holmes of Pine Bluff plans to file suit to stop the strike by street and sanitation workers after they refused to meet with the city by a 2 p.m. deadline Thursday.

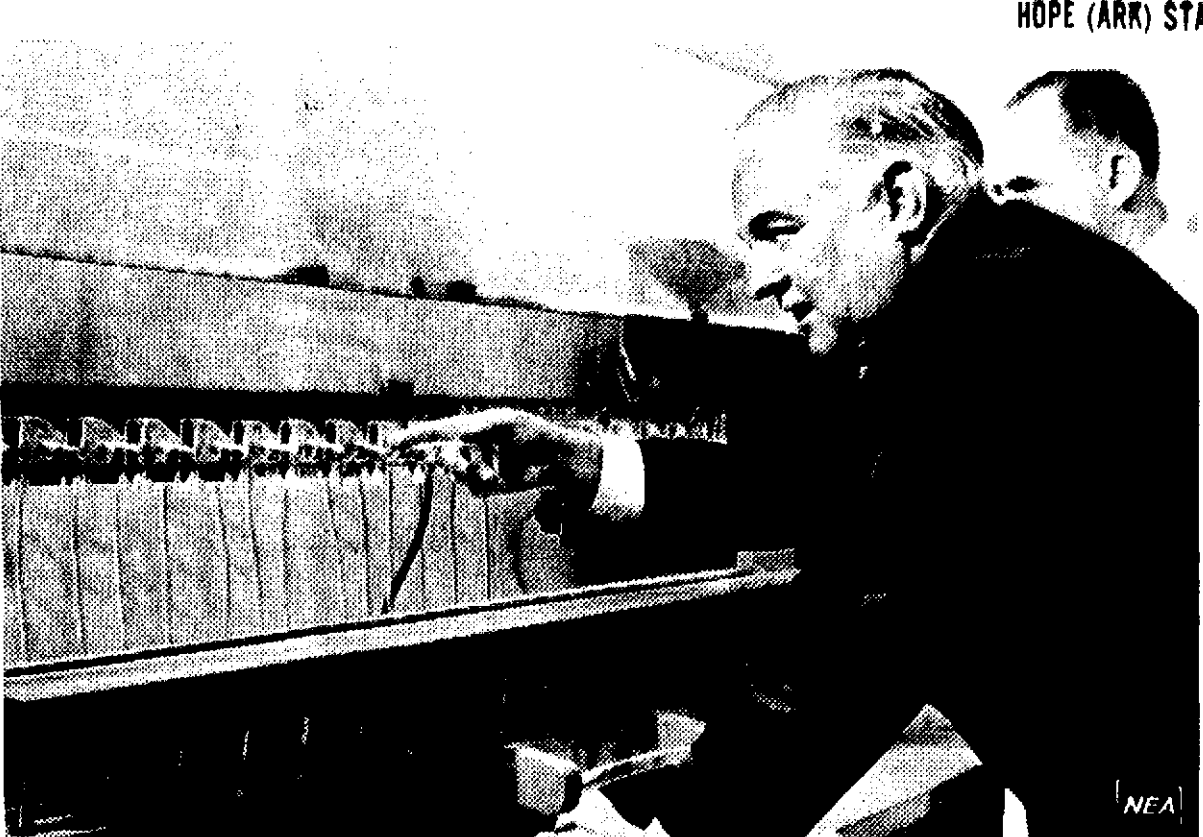

The city, which contends the strike is illegal, had set the deadline for the employees to tell the city whether they would end their walkout.

The city said it would take legal action if the workers weren't back on their jobs this morning.

"We shall not capitulate to your coercive time target...." the city was told in a telegram from Mrs. Jeanne Lambie of Little Rock, president of the Arkansas Council of State, County and Municipal Employees.

"However, as to collective bargaining, please be advised that we still are willing and able to meet with you at any time and place within reason for collective bargaining."

The workers went on strike Monday in a demand for higher wages ranging from 20 to 25 cents an hour.

HEAVY SMOKER is this cigarette testing machine, part of a cigarette-testing program opened May 20 by the Federal Trade Commission. Purpose is to assure the accuracy of tar and nicotine content claimed by some cigarette manufacturers. The machine puffs for two seconds every minute on 20 cigarettes. OREGON JUDGE (From Page One) somebody else providing the money," Himmelsbach said, indicating that the money might come from Arkansas.

Wolff said in his ruling that Richard G. Emory, 38, a convicted forger, and James Stephens, 22, a convicted robber, should be released because of cruel and unusual punishment and because records failed to show that they were represented by counsel at their trials or advised of their constitutional rights.

The other two convicts are Jimmie Pike, 36, a convicted killer, and Don C. Smith, 17, who was convicted of sodomy.

Wolff based his decision on their dismissal on cruel and unusual punishment.

The four men escaped from Tucker Prison Farm Jan. 15 and were arrested two days later near Baker. They will remain in jail pending a possible appeal.

Arkansas asked for their extradition and assured Oregon Gov. Tom McCall that their rights would be protected if they were returned. After a hearing attended by Scott, McCall said he was satisfied with the assurances and signed an extradition order. The order was blocked by the prisoners' application for a writ of habeas corpus.

The judge said in his decision on the writ that "Arkansas, whatever her promise may have been to Oregon's governor, did not come into this court to give any assurances of fairness and decency to the plaintiffs. . . She has not put her word to the test of the oath."

"I would challenge him to show me one single case in which the state of Oregon entered an appearance and defended itself against the allegations of a fugitive from justice," Scott replied Thursday. "It's just not done by Oregon or any other state on a writ of habeas."

Wolff also said that the "undisputed evidence... establishes that Arkansas conducts at her two penal institutions, Cummins and Tucker, a system of barbarity, cruelty, torture, bestiality, corruption, terror and animal viciousness that reeks of Dachau and Auschwitz."

He said Arkansas convicts had no access to the courts or to counsel and the "subjection of the prisoners to physical violence if they are returned, and probably to death itself, is not mere speculation."

Arkansas, he said, "cannot engage inpenal practices violating the federal constitutional prohibition against cruel and unusual punishment."

"A state may be poor in resources," he said, "but it does not need to be devoid of human decency and fairness. . . (conditions) predictably will not be changed until the social conscience of the people of Arkansas and of their governing officialdom causes them to join the Twentieth Century in matters of prison reform."

"The people of Arkansas are chargeable with the neglect, wrongdoing and failures of her governing officials. Her legislators cannot plead ignorance to these revolting conditions. . . Her governor's in the past could not possibly have been unaware. . ."

Faubus, who was completing his 12th year in office when a State Police investigation revealed instances of brutality and extortion at Tucker Prison Farm late last year, called on his experience with criminals to answer Wolff.

Gen. George A. Custer, who was massacred by the Sioux, was finally buried at West Point.

To the West's dismay, he has been friendly through the years with members of the Communist camp, such as Fidel Castro, with whom he is shown above. At right, 1967 has brought another mobilization of forces for the Arabs, as border difficulties with Israel resulted in a new rush of equipment into the Sinai Peninsula.

The Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority is working on plans for use of an alternate yard, but so far hasn't been able to complete arrangements to transfer the Cambridge facilities elsewhere.

The library corporation selected the famed New York architect, I. M. Pei, to design the library. But his work is being delayed because it still isn't certain exactly how much of the land at the site will be available.

A spokesman for the library believes, however, that construction may begin by October 1968 and that the library may open by the spring of 1970.

Nineteen million dollars of the required $21 million needed for land purchase and endowment of the John F. Kennedy School of Government has been raised, and backers see no real problem in raising $2 million more.

Part of the Kennedy center already is in operation. Harvard renamed its graduate school of public administration the John Fitzgerald Kennedy School of Government, and it is operating under that name at Littauer Center, a few blocks away.

When the library project is completed, the school is to move there into one of the buildings in a complex which also will house the Kennedy archives and a museum.

The statistics of the Kennedy collection are staggering. The library now has 14,900,000 pages of original manuscript materials of Kennedy's speeches, memoranda, speeches and documents of all descriptions.

There are microfilms of 2,500 pages of copies of manuscript material in addition. Other listings include 11,800 books and other printed items; 10,500 museum objects; 73,000 photographs; 860,000 feet of motion picture films; more than 1,000

Kennedy Library Is Near Harvard

By CORNELIUS F. HURLEY
BOSTON (AP) — At the top of Boston's Beacon Hill, across the street from the Massachusetts State House, is a red brick apartment house which has been a Kennedy headquarters for 20 years.

Now it is the main office of the John Fitzgerald Kennedy Library.

The library site is on the Cambridge bank of the Charles River, a scant two blocks from the heart of Harvard University — the famed Yard.

And it is only a couple of hundred yards from Winthrop House where the late president lived as a Harvard undergraduate.

The library site now is occupied by the Cambridge yards of Boston's transit system, the end of the line yard for the Boston-Cambridge subway, and for bus lines which radiate from Harvard Square.

The Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority is working on plans for use of an alternate yard, but so far hasn't been able to complete arrangements to transfer the Cambridge facilities elsewhere.

The library corporation selected the famed New York architect, I. M. Pei, to design the library. But his work is being delayed because it still isn't certain exactly how much of the land at the site will be available.

A spokesman for the library believes, however, that construction may begin by October 1968 and that the library may open by the spring of 1970.

Nineteen million dollars of the required $21 million needed for land purchase and endowment of the John F. Kennedy School of Government has been raised, and backers see no real problem in raising $2 million more.

Part of the Kennedy center already is in operation. Harvard renamed its graduate school of public administration the John Fitzgerald Kennedy School of Government, and it is operating under that name at Littauer Center, a few blocks away.

When the library project is completed, the school is to move there into one of the buildings in a complex which also will house the Kennedy archives and a museum.

The statistics of the Kennedy collection are staggering. The library now has 14,900,000 pages of original manuscript materials of Kennedy's speeches, memoranda, speeches and documents of all descriptions.

There are microfilms of 2,500 pages of copies of manuscript material in addition. Other listings include 11,800 books and other printed items; 10,500 museum objects; 73,000 photographs; 860,000 feet of motion picture films; more than 1,000

Belgium Fire Destroys Mill

BRUSSELS (AP) — Belgium's third major fire in nine days destroyed a paper and cardboard factory in suburban Jette Tuesday night. No casualties were reported.

The worst of the fires occurred May 22 in a crowded department store in downtown Brussels, killing at least 300 persons. The second broke out last Sunday in a warehouse of the Brussels Opera, destroying valuable stage sets. Arson was suspected.

Middle East Full of Hate, Dirty Tricks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Middle East is a can of worms, and not nice ones. It's now a mixture of hate, religious prejudice, face-saving, egotism, throne-saving, legalisms, and probably dirty tricks not yet discovered.

The ill will between Jordan's King Hussein, who got a lot of help from the United States, and Egypt's President Gamal Abdel Nasser, who got a lot of help from the Soviet Union, was so intense that on May 2 Nasser called Hussein a stooge for the American CIA.

Tuesday Nasser called him brother after Hussein traveled to Cairo to sign a mutual defense pact with him against Israel.

Hussein probably did it because he was afraid he'd lose his throne if he didn't since his Jordanians are hopping with hatred for the Israelis and full of steam for Nasser, who forced a showdown with Israel.

This was fairly typical for Nasser. Since his humiliation by the Israeli-British-French attack on Egypt in 1956, Nasser has been pretty mousy and lost prestige with the other Arab leaders.

But now, since he is in this critical situation with Israel, they have felt it necessary to rally around him, some of them probably for the same reason as Hussein's. Nasser's ego needed something like this, even within his own country, where the economy is bad and complaints were growing.

Although the Jews and the Moslem Arabs who surround them are all Semites, it's their religion which separates them. The Arabs have vowed unrelenting enmity since the Israelis set up their government in the middle of the Arab world in 1948.

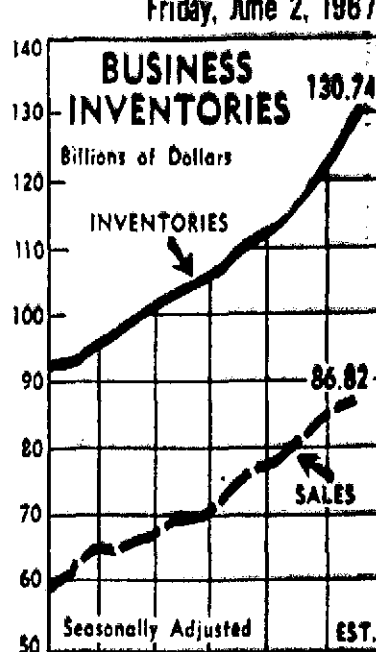

Meanwhile, Moscow is giving a classic example of temperamental politics, a repeat performance.

Immediately after North Korea invaded South Korea in 1950, the U.N. Security Council went into session and passed a resolution calling for a ceasefire. This paved the way for the United States to get into the war with U.N. approval.

The Soviets might have blocked the council action then — if it had only been there. But it had been boycotting the council for months because Nationalist China was represented on the council and Moscow insisted that the newly created Red China should have the seat.

Now comes the Mideast crisis, and until Thursday, the first of June, the Nationalist Chinese delegate is the council president, a job which rotates among the 15 council members.

Although things have changed since 1950, and the Soviets and Red Chinese now are bitter enemies, Moscow still insists Red

Where sales tended to level off somewhat during 1966, inventories continued sharply upward, partly inspired by concern over possible scarcity and rising prices.

China should have Nationalist China's seat. This time the United States is urging fast action by the council to preserve peace in the Mideast. The hope is that all 15 members will approve some kind of cease-and-desist resolution.

But diplomatic sources say any agreement like that is un-Soviet as long as Nationalist China has the president who made the Mideast crisis totally critical by banning Israeli shipping from the Gulf of Aqaba, an action President Johnson calls illegal, has tangled the crisis in legalisms.

Egypt had barred Israeli shipping from the gulf from 1948 until the war of 1956. Since then Israel has depended on U.N. peacekeeping forces in Egypt to keep the gulf open. But Nasser this month told the U.N. troops to get out and they did. Now Nasser says he wants things to be as they were before 1956—meaning Israeli shipping banned from the gulf.

And the crisis might not be half as bad as it is if Israel itself had not refused to let the U.N. peacekeeping force operate inside its territory. Nasser did and, because he did, he could order the U.N. troops out when he wished.

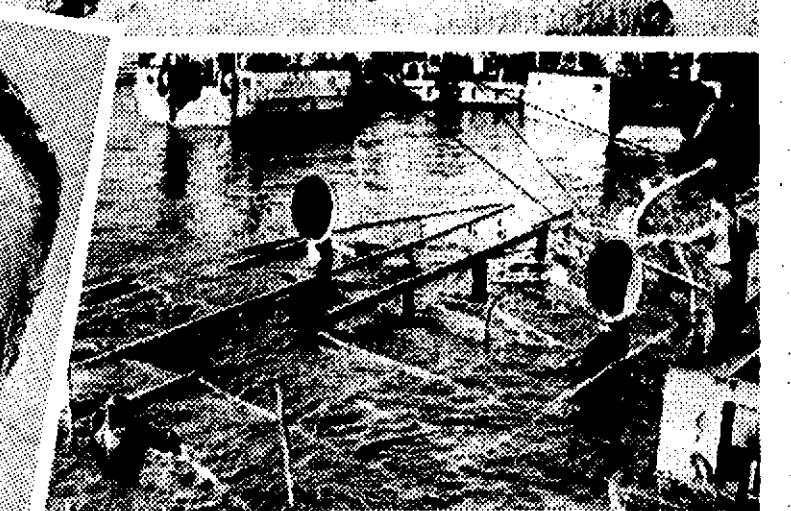

And nobody knows yet whether Moscow, which says it backs Nasser, cooked this up with him as a double deal: to let him regain prestige and try to force the United States, if it wants Mideast peace, to make concessions on Vietnam.

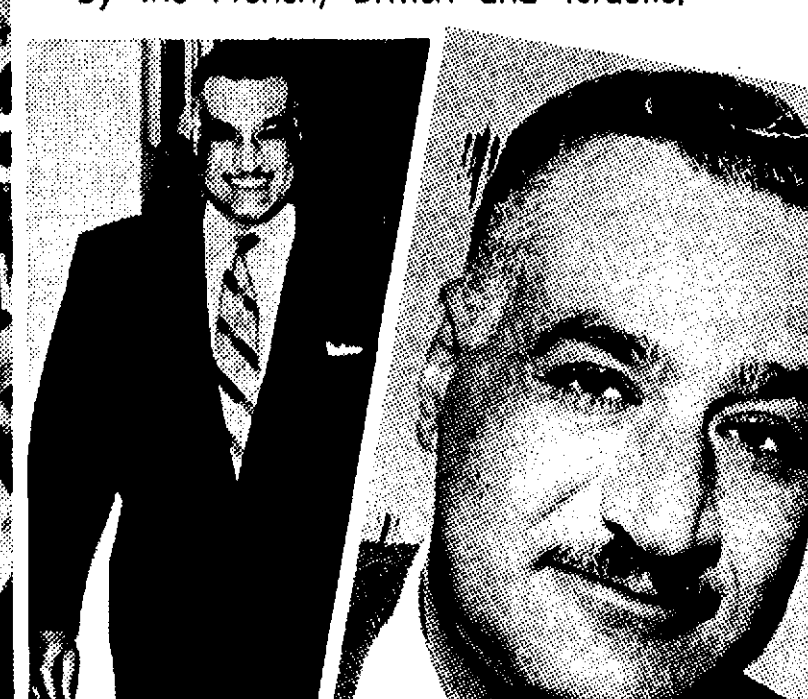

Vindictive letters about a company hurts the individual more than the firm.

NASSER

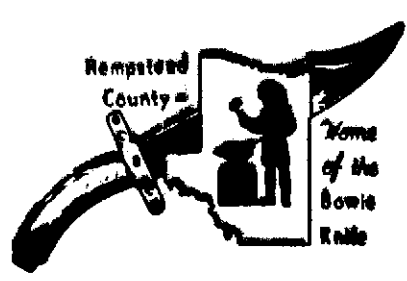

Strongman of the Middle East for over a decade has been Gamal Abdel Nasser, president of the United Arab Republic. Beloved by most of the Arab world, he has sometimes been a puzzling irritant to the West. Britain went on military alert at the Suez Canal zone, right, soon after Nasser came to power and pressed for Arab ownership of the canal. Violence erupted in 1956 when he nationalized the canal and was attacked by the French, British and Israelis.

Ships sunk in the canal during the 1956 hostilities blocked passage through the famous waterway for some months, until they could be cleared. Below, Nasser confers with UN Secretary-General U Thant about the current crisis.

Color Delay
Asia Minor
No Major

Our process color picture of Norfolk Lake in full-page width was scheduled for publication today but has been cancelled and we'll try to get it into the paper early next week. Process color production is about as uncertain as the weather. We had the separation negatives and pressroom proof ready a week ago, but were unable to make an electronic test because our Macbeth Densitometer, a delicate and costly testing device, had to be returned to the factory in Newburgh, N.Y., for transportation damage repair.

Last night we checked the Norfolk picture with a borrowed machine and, regardless how good the proof looks, the test indicates we are out of color balance. There is always the temptation to rush into print once—like a hurriedly gotten-up outdoor barbecue. But a wise guy checks to see whether it looks like rain. . . .

Americans shouldn't worry too much about the confrontation between Israel and the Arabs. Asia Minor's troubles have been going on for thousands of years, and while this particular quarrel may lead to fighting it's unlikely to involve the big nations directly.

The situation calls for a united front to preserve law and order, but the appointed guardian—the United Nations—folded up the first time Egypt's Nasser barked an order. The burden of maintaining peace therefore falls back upon the major powers, but these are divided; Britain and United States oppose Egypt's order closing an international sea route to Israel, Russia sides with Egypt—and France is caught between the two conflicting positions.

Gratitude is only a dirty word in Asia Minor, of course, as Americans know. Some years ago Egypt's Nasser attempted to seize the French-owned Suez Canal; Britain and France sent troops and ships to stop him—but the United States intervened against her old allies and turned the canal over to Nasser. Now Nasser reviles the United States everyday, and France stays constantly mad at us.

The way of the transgressor may be hard, but harder still is the way of the peacemaker. Asia Minor always has been a hotbed of racial and religious dispute, and none of the big nations are going to involve themselves, deliberately. Rather, the indicated course of events is some local fighting until the local parties grow tired and are stalemated.

But if Nasser keeps on threatening to close international waterways he will eventually find the entire world lined up against him—even risking Egypt's possible loss of Suez.

Good Weekend Weatherwise

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The U. S. Weather Bureau indicated today that Arkansas will be free of rain this weekend for a change.

A slight possibility of some light rain, however, remained in South Arkansas today, but it appeared that most of the rain is over.

Cloudy skies shrouded the state this morning. A weak front which has been affecting the weather for the last several days has moved to southern Arkansas and appears headed out of the state.

Air north of the front is drier and cooler. Skies should clear tonight over the state and cooler minimum temperatures are predicted in the morning.

Market Stages a Comeback

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market Thursday staged a solid comeback from Wednesday's steep loss.

Brokers said investors' anxiety over the Middle East crisis apparently had diminished.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials jumped 12.42 points to 864.98. This was the exact amount of its loss Wednesday. The Associated Press 60-stock average gained 3.9 points to 320.7. The New York Stock Exchange common stock index gained 59 cents in the average price of a share.

Oregon Judge Draws Criticism for Refusing to Return 4 Convicts Economy of Vietnam Worries U.S.

By JOHN T. WHEELER
SAIGON (AP) — U.S. officials are deeply concerned over signs that South Vietnam's economy may be headed for runaway inflation.

One high source says harsh measures may be necessary if a feared inflationary surge in the second half of the year is tacked onto the 22 to 24 per cent increase in the cost of living during the first five months of 1967.

The Vietnamese government and the U.S. mission here have discussed the problem, but so far no contingency plans have been agreed upon.

The fear in some quarters is that the economy, which was brought under some measure of control during 1966 through a painful currency devaluation and U.S. financed imports, may be headed for the disastrous inflation that feeds on itself.

Among the problems inflation fighters face are powerful interests who through speculation can pile up fantastic profits if they are nimble enough.

WR Wants G&F Group to Resign

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller has called a news conference for today at Pine Bluff where he is expected to reveal what he will do with the state Game and Fish Commission since the commissioners say they will not resign.

Rockefeller set a noon deadline for today in a letter he wrote last week to commissioners asking for their resignations en masse.

Rockefeller said he received a negative reply from each commissioner.

However, Rockefeller still declined to say what alternative action he would take, and said that he would like to talk with some of them before the noon deadline.

The governor indicated that he would be glad to meet with the commission today prior to a noon speech he is making at Pine Bluff to a civic club. He said he planned to talk with Commission Chairman Stanley McNulty of Pine Bluff today.

"I think it is appropriate to call the chairman even though his term of office runs out next month," Rockefeller said.

Rockefeller said the commissioners may change their minds if they "find out why I think it is in the best interest of the people for them to resign."

He would not elaborate.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — An Oregon circuit judge who has refused to return four escaped convicts to Arkansas drew critical comments Thursday from Arkansas Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller, Rockefeller's aide for prison affairs and former Gov. Orval Faubus.

Rockefeller called the ruling by Circuit Judge Lyle Wolf an "open invitation (to Arkansas prison inmates) to escape and leave for Oregon."

Rockefeller aide Bob Scott said the judge apparently had been "unable to distinguish between what has been and what is" in Arkansas' penal system.

Faubus said statements by the judge "sound pretty extreme, and therefore reveal his extreme ignorance."

Wolf said Wednesday that the prisoners should be released from the Baker County Jail at Baker, Ore., because cruel and unusual punishment received in Arkansas had voided their convictions.

Dist. Atty. Jesse Himmelsbach of Baker said Thursday that he would determine next week whether to appeal Wolf's decision to the Oregon Supreme Court, depending on whether it would require a transcript of proceedings in Wolf's court.

The cost of the transcript may be prohibitive, but "there is no legal impediment to it."

Some of the Values Of Life Are Lost in Jumping to Conclusions

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions: Expense account living has tempted more Americans into bad habits than the devil.

The most overpriced food item in Manhattan is the bagel. Those who grow misty-eyed while talking about how good it is are generally speaking from memory. They probably haven't eaten one in a year.

One of the curses of modern prosperity is that a rich man now has a hard time finding anyone to break in his new shoes for him. In the old days a person of wealth usually had a poor relative wear his new shoes until the stiffness had been taken out of them.

Teen-agers are running out of new slang and turning to the old. For example, they now often use the term "hoob" when they want to insult each other. That word, usually applied to a country yokel, was hot stuff in 1900.

We lose our values earlier in life now. A child begins to lose his when he no longer gets a thrill out of putting a penny in a machine and getting back a ball of gum.

Women who are overfond of cats usually have been disap-

Views Differ on Campaign Financing

By JOHN CHADWICK
WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration's presidential election campaign financing bill has been buffeted by conflicting views at the start of Senate hearings, creating new doubts about its chances.

Comptroller General Elmer B. Staats takes the witness chair today after Joseph W. Barr, undersecretary of the Treasury, spent five hours Thursday answering a crossfire of questions from Senate Finance Committee members.

One major objection raised against the bill was that it would fail to provide for public financing of all presidential campaign expenses and bar all private contributions.

Other senators protested against appropriation of tax funds to pay campaign costs and urged instead that campaign contributions be made tax deductible, up to specified limits.

Israel-Syria Troops Clash on Border

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli soldiers clashed with a group of Syrian infiltrators near the Syrian border early today and two Israelis were killed, an army spokesman announced.

The incident took place less than a mile from the border at the village of Kar Hanassi, populated by American settlers the spokesman said.

One Syrian also was killed in the clash, the army said. Four Syrians, believed members of the Syrian Palestine Command, crossed into Israel, the army added.

A sub machine gun, ammunition and two antipersonnel mines were found besides the khaki-clad body of the Syrian.

It was the first major incident on the Syrian border, and the first deaths, since the current crisis between Israel and its Arab enemies began.

By HAL MCCLURE

JERUSALEM (AP) — Embattled Israel took new heart today from the appointment of Gen. Moshe Dayan, the architect of the 1956 triumph over Egypt, as the Jewish nation's defense minister. The Egyptians meanwhile threatened to close the Suez Canal to any nation that tries to break the blockade.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser has proclaimed for the Gulf of Aqaba.

Premier Levi Eshkol Thursday night gave up the defense post and named the 52-year-old, one-eyed war hero and political ally of former Premier David Ben-Gurion.

The appointment was warmly welcomed in Israel, though opinion was divided whether it promised a challenge soon to the Egyptian forces threatening Israel's southern shipping route through the Gulf of Aqaba or the Arab legions massed on Israel's frontiers.

Some Israeli hawks expect their government to take a stronger military posture. Doves said Eshkol would have to approve any change in policy, and so far he and Foreign Minister Abba Eban have been following the advice of the United States and others to keep their forces leashed while a diplomatic solution to the crisis is sought.

However, Dayan's appointment was expected in Israel to make a strong impression on the Arabs, who remember his successful leadership in the 1956 Sinai war.

Ben-Gurion hailed Dayan's re-entry into the military field as "a very important step."

"It will give the country a wise and courageous leadership," he said.

Petition Filed to Close Two Negro Places

Norman Smith, deputy prosecuting attorney, has filed a petition in court against Fred Scott and Joe (Cooter) Vaughn, both of Hope, seeking a padlock order against the D-X Service Station located at 403 South Hazel Street, operated by Scott, and against Snake's Shoe Shine Stand located at 413 South Hazel Street, operated by Vaughn.

The petition which is also joined in by the Hope City Attorney's office alleges that both places are used for selling beer and whiskey, and constitute nuisances within the meaning of the law and should be abated.

The matter is scheduled for a preliminary hearing on the question of a temporary padlock order, later today before Judge Royce Weisenberger.

Minietta has been vice commander of the wing. McKee has been reassigned as commander of the 72nd Bomb Wing at Ramey Air Force Base in Puerto Rico.

U.S. Leaders Hopeful Trouble Can Be Solved Without Blockade Test

AP News Digest

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. leaders are reported hopeful a way can be found out of the Israeli-Arab crisis without a test of force against Egypt's anti-Israeli blockade of the Gulf of Aqaba.

A sweeping review of the war-threatening situation in the Middle East and planning for future developments were scheduled in a White House conference between President Johnson and British Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

Wilson, following a brief visit to Canada, was due at the White House in late morning for day-long talks with Johnson.

The President and Wilson through earlier negotiations evolved these main points of strategy for dealing with the crisis:

— To urge restraint on the disputing nations, particularly Egypt and Israel, in order to allow time for secret diplomacy and public debate in the United Nations to have their chance to work out a solution.

Officials consider this so far has succeeded, even though it is not certain the U.N. Security Council will take any positive action to maintain peace in the Middle East. The big gain to date from the U.S.-British point of view is that Israel and the Arab states have not gone to war.

— To rally maximum support among maritime powers for a declaration asserting the Gulf of Aqaba, through which passes shipping to the southern Israeli port of Elath, is an international waterway which Egypt has no right to close to any shipping.

— To arrange, as a last resort, for an international naval force, preferably under U.N. sponsorship, to challenge the Egyptian blockade and open the waterway to shipping.

Don't Start Firing, Warns DeGaulle

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle warned today that any nation which opened fire in the current Middle East crisis would have "neither the approval or support" of France.

He repeated his call for the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France to seek agreement on how the crisis should be resolved.

Britain and the United States have expressed interest in the idea but the Soviet Union has cold-shouldered it.

Scattered actions and Red mortar fire were reported all along the area below the zone, an area shielding the five politically shaky provinces of northern South Vietnam. Sporadic fighting also was reported throughout the five provinces, where Communist infiltration efforts have concentrated for months.

In the southernmost — Quang Ngai — U.S. Army troops sent last month to relieve pressure on the Marines pursued a Red force dislodged from a mile-long bunker complex by naval gunfire Thursday. A spokesman said that no details had been received on what was found in the bunkered fortress uncovered by the fiery naval rocket barrage.

Serious fighting also was reported in the Mekong delta, where the Reds mortared the provincial capital of Tan An 23 miles from Saigon.

The Communists early today shelled a camp holding Red defectors, killing one and wounding 28. They followed with a small ground assault which was beaten off with the aid of a circling American twin-engine plane, "Puff the Magic Dragon" spitting gatling-gun fire.

At dawn 17 Communist dead were found. Four of the Americans were wounded.

Crack Cong Group Routed, 150 Killed

By GEORGE MCARTHUR

SAIGON (AP) — A task force of South Vietnamese paratroopers and infantry with thunderous air and artillery support chopped up a crack Communist battalion just south of the demilitarized zone today and killed at least 150 of the enemy, the Vietnamese Command announced.

A few miles to the west U.S. Marines were calling in air and artillery against a bunkered Communist ridgeline where dug-in North Vietnamese regulars killed 13 Marines and wounded 63 on Thursday.

The fighting raged a few miles below the 17th parallel dividing Vietnam, an area where the Communists have shown every willingness to feed in fresh troops for a growing war of attrition.

The 5,000-man South Vietnamese task force of paratroopers, infantry and armored vehicles ran into the crack Viet Cong 708th Mobile Battalion within five miles of the U.S. Marine base at Dong Ha.

The South Vietnamese jumped off on a widespread sweep at dawn and within hours hit the guerrilla battalion of about 500 men in a coastal area of sand dunes. Low hills and brush where it has long operated. The battle northeast of Quang Tri City was the third in the area in the past two weeks.

To the west, the Marines were attempting to dislodge the North Vietnamese from a low ridgeline that gives them observation of Con Thien and Camp Carroll, two bunkered Marine outposts just below the demilitarized zone.

In this area where sawgrass grows five feet high, the Marines hit a strong Communist force near noon Thursday and battled them until sundown, running into well prepared bunkers and trenches.

Inching forward since then, the Marines directed a hail of artillery and jet strikes on the Red fortifications.

There was no report yet of enemy casualties in the continuing battle.

Scattered actions and Red mortar fire were reported all along the area below the zone, an area shielding the five politically shaky provinces of northern South Vietnam. Sporadic fighting also was reported throughout the five provinces, where Communist infiltration efforts have concentrated for months.
